DEAR FRIENDS,

The holiday season offers opportunities to create our own special traditions and make memories with our families. One of the things my family looks forward to most is our tradition of opening one gift from Santa on Christmas Eve. It’s not the biggest gift, and it’s not the most fantastically wrapped. As we gather around the tree, someone gives it a shake. There’s a muffled rattling noise. What could it be? The family watches with curiosity as I untie the bow and tear off the paper. Soon, cries of excitement come from daughters Chelsea and Ashley. It’s a board game! And we’ll all be spending time around the kitchen table talking and laughing in between rolling the dice and challenging our memories.

My husband, Kirk, and I began this tradition when our girls were small. Santa’s gift is always a game. It’s our way of connecting in an old-fashioned and fun way. By the end of the evening, we’ve all won because we’ve shared the greatest gift of all—time with each other.

As you celebrate this season with your family, Hy-Vee offers this idea-packed issue of Hy-Vee Seasons to help make your holidays special and memorable. You'll find delicious food and treats that you can prepare easily for feasts and parties, gifts for loved ones (pets included), stunning tabletops and dozens of fresh decorating suggestions for your home.

I enjoy the holiday season and all that goes with it. I believe that making memories with those you love is most important. There can never be too many moments spent in fun or in peace with our families. All of us at Hy-Vee wish you and yours the warmest and happiest of holidays.

When Deb Avitt began baking cookies for her salon customers during the holidays, she never dreamed the tradition would last 30 years and involve three generations of her family. Although she has closed her Des Moines shop, Southtown Salon and Beauty, Deb’s holiday cookie-baking tradition is a family project.

These days the whole clan gathers in her Carlisle, Iowa, home to bake, decorate and package nearly 1,500 cookies. Lucky friends, relatives and coworkers receive packages of 30 delicious cookies. The project begins a few weeks before Christmas with the family working together. “It keeps us busy; it’s a nonstop process for two weeks,” says Deb’s daughter, Kim Reed.

Deb says the first secret to a perfect gingerbread or sugar cookie is to refrigerate the dough and work with it while it’s cool. “She won’t let me, or anyone else, mix or bake the cookies,” Kim says. “She’s pretty picky.” Kim gives away another of her mom’s secrets: While many experts use butter for baking, Deb uses only Hy-Vee stick margarine for her sugar cookies. She likes the flavor it gives the dough.

Baking time is the touchiest thing. Deb will never say how long to bake the cookies. “I know by looking when they’re done. If they’re still shiny, they’re not done. You want them to look a little dull and be soft to the touch,” she says. Pull them out of the oven and leave them on the pan so they firm up just a bit, she counsels. Then transfer them to a cooling rack.

And now the fun begins as Kim, her husband and kids get busy with frosting and decorating. “In the beginning I would make my own frosting and decorate the cookies all individually, but now I buy the frosting at Hy-Vee. Deb says Kim’s family carefully clips up spreadable white icing on the cookies, then adds candies and sprinkles for embellishment.

Grandson Brennan, 15, has a laugh that he’ll be first allowed to help now that he can see over the countertop. And he’s one of the lucky few who get to eat the cookies when they taste best … right out of the oven.

When presenting her cookies, Deb likes placing them on the red plastic plates available at Hy-Vee stores. She is careful to place plastic wrap between each layer of cookies. “She won’t let me wrap them either,” Kim says. “I broke it. But she loves my husband wrap them.”

Granddaughter Kailey, 17, gets in on the action, too. “I put dough on the cookie sheet and watch them,” she says. Although she admits that her grandmother is really the only one who can tell when the cookies are done, “Now that I drive, I do a lot of the deliveries,” she adds.

Eager to learn and do more with this favorite family holiday project, Kailey doesn’t expect to duplicate her grandmother’s sugar cookies and gingerbread cutouts anytime soon. But she has developed a niche of her own. “I make really good chocolate chip cookies,” she says. “I’m the chocolate chip woman and I’m proud that Grandma can make all the others.”

TIME TOGETHER—FUN COOKIE CRAFTS

Here are tips for starting wonderful holiday baking traditions with kids.

2. Do a little prep work. Before you call the kids into the kitchen, get everything out that you are going to need. Cover all surfaces with waxed paper or newspaper, depending on the project. Put the kids in aprons or, better yet, old T-shirts. Have them wash their hands thoroughly.

3. When tackling a project like the gingerbread house, let the older kids pipe on the frosting (a plastic bag with the corner cut is a simple way to squeeze on frosting). The little ones can put candy on top of the icing. To make the candy easier to handle, pour it in little bowls within easy reach of the kids.

4. Make cleanup part of the fun, too, so kids learn that it’s just a part of the process. If you clean up a little bit after each step, there will be less to do at the end.

5. Take pictures! Remember, you’re making memories.

Cinnamon Dough Ornaments

Decorate a tree with these awesome gingerbread ornaments. (But please don’t eat!) To make the ornaments, combine 1/2 cup ground cinnamon and 2 tablespoons white craft glue. Gradually add 1/3 to 1/2 cup water. Form dough into a ball. Roll out 1/4 inch thick. Using a gingerbread cutter, cut out shapes. Poke a hole in each ornament and let dry at room temperature for one to two days, turning several times. Decorate with icing, add buttons and bows. Hang with ribbons so you can enjoy the fragrance.

A FUN-TO-MAKE GINGERBREAD HOUSE

Create a beautiful gingerbread house in an afternoon with the Wilton Pre-Baked Gingerbread House Kit. Take the pre-baked gingerbread pieces out of the box, make icing from the mix that comes with the kit and you’re set to assemble the house. Even the decorating bag and tips used for house assembly are included.

Here comes the fun part, the “decoration.” You can decorate the house as simply or elaborately as you like. Start with the colorful candies and icing snowman and tree that come with the kit. Add a few embellishments of your own, such as frosted miniature shredded wheat for a thatched-roof look or chocolate candy rolls for fences and tree trunks. Display the house on a sturdy cardboard base covered with white icing and sprinkled with coconut for snow. Your gingerbread house will stay intact for several weeks if you keep it in a cool dry place. You may want to cover it at night with plastic wrap to seal out that as well as moisture and humidity.

1. Wilton Gingerbread House Kit $9.97
2. DecoCakes Decorations: selected varieties 75 to 4.25 oz. 5/$5.00
3. M&M’s Christmas Stand Up Bag: plain or peanut 42 oz. 3/$99

Several weeks before Christmas, swathe your home in lush evergreens—fresh-cut or artificial, depending on your preference. Order fresh evergreen garland, in the lengths needed, from your local Hy-Vee florist early, so you’ll have enough for every surface you plan to decorate. Consider decorating major exterior and interior architectural features of your home, such as the front and back doors, porch railings and columns, mantels, staircases and select pieces of furniture—sideboards or large cabinets, for example. When ordering and picking up fresh greenery, choose a tree, wreath or swag to decorate a room, doors and focal points around your home.

Hang the greenery with covered florist’s wire, chenille stems or removable hooks. To keep greenery as fresh as possible, hang it away from heating vents and fireplaces that will be used. Spotz the garlands, swags and wreaths regularly to keep them looking and smelling fresh throughout the season. Complete your foundational seasonal decor with long-lasting embellishments, such as colorful Christmas balls, ribbon, candy canes or pinecones. Flank the fireplace or a side table with tall tin buckets brimming with natural or artificial snow-covered branches from Hy-Vee. For a creative design detail, add a ribbon and sparkly Christmas balls to the top of each bucket.

Whether you decorate the great room for an annual cocktail party, invite in carolers to the kitchen for steaming mugs of cocoa, or just cozy up to the fireplace with loved ones, festively dressed living spaces make any seasonal gathering a celebration. What’s in style this season? Holiday decor has been more versatile over the years, with nontraditional and whimsical color schemes. But this year, color trend watchers predict that classic red and green will be the most sought after holiday palette. Familiar, classic and nostalgic designs are slated to be the most popular. At Hy-Vee you’ll find on-trend, classic Christmas designs plus the charming Northwoods collection—complete with barn-board look wooden trays—and the uptown glitz and glam of big dramatic trees and centerpieces (see page 16).

Christmas red and green come in a variety of shade and hue combinations—from lime green to forest green and cherry red to burgundy. Floral manager Donna Bennett designed a table-top floral sculpture that mixes deep-red Black Baccara roses with lime-green cymbidium orchids and live wheat grass plants. The centerpiece, a modern take on traditional holiday floral, is suitable for a coffee table, buffet, sideboard, half table or kitchen island. Similar hues appear in the hydrangeas embedded in mantel-top mini trees and in the hanging kissing balls, each a sweet twist on the mistletoe tradition that combines burgundy mini carnations and lime green Button Poms. “Tradition is huge at Christmas, but a lot of people also like something more contemporary,” says Donna.

Fresh blooms transform evergreens, wreaths and swags and trees into party-perfect decorations. A few hours before a big event, place orchids, stems of hydrangeas, roses, mums, carnations or hypericum berries into water tubes then poke the tubes into the greens. Depending on the type of flower, the blooms last three or four days. Be sure to refill water tubes as needed.

Classic Beauty, Minimal Effort

With so many demands on time around the holidays, it’s a relief to rely on a few pieces of effortlessly elegant decor, such as prelit artificial evergreens from Hy-Vee, year after year. This set (at right) includes two mini trees, a wreath and swag. Picking up the green to place around the house maximizes the look and makes the pieces versatile. To freshen the look for this year, loop a sturdy satin ribbon in an cheery color (bright green or pale pink, for example) around the wreath, then hang it on a mirror where it reflects light and will cast a warm glow. Add personality to wreaths and swags by attaching cherished ornaments, artificial berries, candy canes or collectibles such as miniatures. Prop the little lighted trees in sturdy urns or spray-painted ceramic pots (in black or silver) and place them to flank front porch steps. To use as mini Christmas trees in hallways or children’s rooms, decorate the trees with paper chains and homemade gingerbread ornaments. The more creatively you deck your halls, the more welcoming your home will feel.

mix bold crimson with snowy white flowers. For extra sparkle, create a small forest of glittering trees in a simple wooden tray, or pick up a star-topped golden wire tree to shimmer as a centerpiece on a table or buffet. Red and gold ornaments provide extra luster. Just remember that amid the glitter, less is often more. “Simple, clean lines are a big trend this year,” says Traci Bruns. Limit your palette to three compatible colors, and keep floral arrangements simple. An oversize brandy snifter or wineglass filled with stunning white roses and hydrangeas makes a richly elegant centerpiece for your holiday table.

The warm and trendy Northwoods look makes guests feel right at home and it’s eclectic enough to allow repurposing what you already have. Mix new decorating items, such as Hy-Vee’s plush Santa Advent calendar, with decor from seasons past or give an everyday item a holiday makeover. Paint a well-worn cabinet Christmas green or stage a red wagon as a playground for a sweater-wearing snowman. For special events, have a Hy-Vee florist arrange playful or dramatic centerpieces, such as the one with bells of Ireland, cymbidium orchids and roses placed on a wooden cake stand (pages 18), or one of the many others shown in this issue.

When holiday decorating becomes overwhelming, or you’d like a second opinion, call on a Hy-Vee florist for on-site decorating. “We begin with a walk-through of the home with the homeowner,” says Donna Bennett, floral manager at Hy-Vee in Overland Park, Kansas. “I’ll let them guide me and tell me the areas they really want to focus on and what they have in mind.” Armed with measurements for mantels, stairways and tabletops, Donna sketches her ideas for a range of centerpieces, wreaths, garlands and accent pieces in different styles and price ranges. “I say, ‘Here’s Plan A, B and C,’ then let the customer choose,” she says. Before coming to Hy-Vee six years ago, Donna owned her own floral shop. There and here, her customers trust her creative vision. In turn, she loves to show customers how to freshen their holiday decor. “We’re really trying to show people that there’s so much you can do with flowers,” Donna says.
PREP FOR THE HOLIDAYS
AT OUR PLACE

With the winter weather overhead, it’s easy to get carried away in your holiday decorating. But remember, a good idea can turn into a disaster if it’s not executed properly. Here are some tips to help you create a festive and welcoming atmosphere in your home.

1. Mix bold crimson with snowy white flowers. For extra sparkle, create a small forest of glittering trees in a simple wooden tray, or pick up a star-topped golden wire tree to shimmer as a centerpiece on a table or buffet. Red and gold ornaments provide extra luster. Just remember that amid the glitz, less is often more. “Simple, clean lines are a big trend this year,” says Traci Bruns. Limit your palette to three compatible colors, and keep floral arrangements simple. An oversize brandy snifter or wineglass filled with stunning white roses and hydrangeas makes a richly elegant centerpiece for your holiday table.

2. To make the most of the season, Traci suggests incorporating nature-inspired elements into your decor. “I love the idea of having trees as part of your table setting,” she says. “Whether you use real ones or fake, they add a touch of magic to your table.”

3. When holiday decorating becomes overwhelming, or you’d like a second opinion, call on a Hy-Vee florist for on-site decorating. “We begin with a walk-through of the home with the homeowner,” says Donna Bennett, floral manager at Hy-Vee in Overland Park, Kansas. “I’ll let them guide me and tell me the areas they really want to focus on and what they have in mind.” Armed with measurements for mantels, stairways and tabletops, Donna sketches her ideas for a range of centerpieces, wreaths, garlands and accent pieces in different styles and price ranges. “I say, ‘Here’s Plan A, B and C,’ then let the customer choose,” she says. 'Tis the season for celebration and sleigh bells, ribbons and wrapping. As you make holiday gift lists and check them twice, plan to double the fun of giving this year by creating and giving gifts that are as unique as each of your gift recipients.

Container gifting takes little time because many are filled with ready-made goodies and there’s little or no wrapping involved. An assortment of containers makes it easy to choose something to fit everyone on your list. Consider filling small containers to share with those who make your life easier throughout the year—newspaper deliverers, mail carriers, massage therapists, hair and nail professionals and others whom you appreciate. Assembling gifts personally and sharing that experience with little ones is a lesson in giving from the heart, and children add to the delight of the holidays as they dream up surprises for family, friends and teachers.

In a variety of sizes and shapes and filled to please, baskets are ideal for family, friends and groups. Even when you’re in a hurry and need a tasteful spur-of-the-moment gift, stop by Hy-Vee for ready-made baskets, filled to the brim with beautiful fresh produce and other delightful edibles. All baskets come beautifully wrapped and decorated for immediate gift-giving.

Container giving saves time, often provides two gifts in one, is personalized to each gift recipient and eliminates excessive wrapping. Your holiday shopping just got easier and more fun.

Bountiful baskets (pages 26–27), filled with an assortment of edibles, are always welcomed. Visit the Hy-Vee Produce Department to view the wide variety of choices on display. Or use the display to spark an idea, then ask a Hy-Vee professional to create a unique made-to-order basket filled with produce, meats, wine, cheeses, specialty crackers, spreads, cookies, baked goods and more. Customize further with nonfood items such as gift cards, sports team paraphernalia, magazines, games, toys, personal care items and more.

Doug Riley, assistant vice president, Hy-Vee Produce Operations, says, “We can fill any container with anything a customer wants; we even do baskets for pets.” Whether customers choose a basket from the store or bring in a container, Hy-Vee staff will help create theme baskets within specific budgets. Doug suggests getting specific to fill baskets for those you know well, and going with generalized baskets for giving to acquaintances.

Here’s to your health! Give baskets of fruit to promote good eating. Yuletide favorites of ready-made fruit baskets make gift shopping a snap. Look for fruit baskets in the Hy-Vee Produce Department.

Your local Hy-Vee Produce experts can arrange a basket or tray with a bountiful array of fruit that’s sure to please. “Adding jams, summer sausages, coffee or cookies to a mix of fruit personalizes baskets to please anyone on your gift list,” says Doug Miller, assistant vice president, Hy-Vee Produce Operations. Customize a fruit basket around a theme, such as healthful snacking, family movie night (fruit, popcorn, chips, salsa and M&M’s) or a sledding party (fruit, hot cocoa packets, hearty whole grain muffins and cheese). Ask an expert at your Hy-Vee for assistance with creating customized fruit baskets.

Winter offers the rare opportunity to admire the brilliance of Mother Nature in repose. Start a new tradition this year and plan an outing to experience her beauty up close.

MAKE A DAY OF IT

Take a winter hike. Ask a local farmer if you can spend the day exploring the land and hunting for animal tracks in the snow. Collect pinecones and small branches to help embellish a holiday wreath for the front door of your house.

If you’re not ready to break out snow gear just yet, plan a winter horseback ride rather than a hike. Spend a few hours traversing the blanketed woodlands on horseback and marveling at the stillness all around. Remember to take a camera. If you stop to capture favorite moments during the day, you might capture the perfect shot for a family Christmas card.

Whichever winter activity you choose, make sure everyone gets outdoors for fresh air. "Go outside and play as a family," says Hy-Vee dietitian Susan Coe, Omaha. "Have a snowball fight or a snowman building contest." Reconnect with your children and your own inner child as you debate which snow angel is better and devise a strategy to build the most stable snow fort. Go sledding or ice-skating to experience the best of this season’s pastimes.

KEEP SAFETY IN MIND

When dressing for winter activities, remember boots, mittens, scarves and hats. Outerwear should be water-resistant. Dress in layers that can be removed and added as needed. When clothes get wet, change them as quickly as possible to avoid loss of body heat. Wear waterproof socks, which can help ensure feet stay dry even in the deepest snow.

Take plenty of water along for your winter outing. Dehydration is a serious problem even during cold months. Be on the lookout for frostbite; watch for a white appearance in exposed and covered extremities, such as ears, nose, fingers and toes.

Always supervise children while sledding. If possible, purchase a sled with runners and steering mechanism, which is safer than a toboggan. Check that there are no tree stumps, fence posts, rocks, streams or other potential dangers under the snow. Allow children to ice-skate on specially prepared skating areas where the ice is free of cracks, holes and other debris and strong enough to withstand their weight.

REFUEL AS NEEDED

Bodies work extra hard to generate heat on cold days. To build heat, extra fuel is required—food. Pack delicious hot snacks to recharge the group as energy runs low. Pack Turkey-Vegetable Soup and Cheesy Garlic Biscuits (see recipes, page 30) to take along for the day. Store the soup in individual insulated containers so it stays piping hot. When it’s time to eat, each person can simply open a container of soup, place a cheesy biscuit on top and enjoy.

Include fresh-cut vegetables, such as cauliflower or broccoli, and some fruit, such as grapes with the meal. In addition to water, offer all-natural warm cider or juice fortified with vitamins and minerals to provide additional nutrients to replenish weary bodies.

KEEP IT HEALTHY
By the Department of Agriculture’s guidelines, March is a great month to eat more fruit. There are no better fruits than the California grapes. The California climate is perfect for growing grapes all year round. The grapes are not only delicious, but also nutritious. California grapes are a perfect source of antioxidants and vitamins. Chris also suggests trying a variation in the recipe by substituting raisins, dried cherries, or dried cranberries for the cranberries.

Whether you are outside or indoors, eating healthily throughout the winter is important. The following tips will help you keep the New Year’s resolution of eating healthier.

- Eat slowly. You will eat less if you take time to thoroughly chew every bite and savor the food.
- Watch liquid calories. Copycat, for example, can have up to 400 calories per glass, so include hot cocoa or herbal tea in your drink choices.
- Situate away from the food area. If you stand near the buffet table, you’re sure to snack throughout the night.
- Use a smaller plate. This may create the illusion that there is a large amount of food on it.
- Limit salty snacks. Salt makes you eat and drink even more; try limiting them or avoiding them altogether.
- Take initiative. Prepare a healthful dish or salad for a holiday gathering.

Hy-Vee dietitian Susan Coe suggests making this trail mix for your next outdoor gathering. It’s so simple it can be made in a few minutes the night before the big outing. All you need are marshmallows, pretzels, peanuts, dried cranberries and popped Hy-Vee white popcorn.

HOLIDAY HARVEST
When planning your holiday menus this year, include some of the plumpest, juiciest and tastiest California grapes found at your local Hy-Vee. “We harvest a lot of our best tasting varieties in the fall,” says Chris Caratan, co-owner of Columbine Vineyard. The Columbine Vineyard growing season lasts five months, from early July to late November. “As soon as harvest is over in late November, we start pruning the vines for the next season,” Chris says. “Our weather pattern in the San Joaquin Valley is amazingly stable and predictable, which lets us get our harvest off line.”

Columbine Vineyard has been family-owned and operated for three generations. Mario Caratan, an immigrant from Croatia, became one of the first table grape growers in the San Joaquin Valley back in 1926. He later passed the business to his sons Milan and Luis. Now a third generation of Caratan boys, cousins Chris and Martin, oversee the company.

“We grow 14 different varieties of grapes in all three colors—black, red and green.” Chris says. The reason for growing so many varieties is because different varieties of grapes ripen at different times, throughout summer and early fall. “This way, we can deliver an abundant supply of fresh grapes to our customers throughout the entire growing season,” Chris says.

Columbine Vineyards continually strives to improve its process and product line. “Our company is devoted to reinvesting our earnings into research and development so we can develop new and better grape varieties,” Chris says. The company successfully developed the holiday seedless grape (below), a favorite among Hy-Vee customers. “We feel honored to be able to grow such a delicious and nutritious product,” he says, “and then deliver that product to such great stores as Hy-Vee.”

Chris’ tips to choose table grapes:
- Look for grapes that are dry.
- Look for grapes with fresh green stems.
- 15% UK when there are brown grapes in the bag, they’re just less than from the stem.
Chirs’ tips to store grapes:
- Keep grapes in a high-humidity location, such as a refrigerator drawer.
- Store grapes in the bag to preserve the stem.
- Under proper refrigerated conditions, grapes should keep for two or three weeks.

Christmas Morning BRUNCH

Enticing aromas of freshly brewed coffee, sizzling bacon and cinnamon-scented waffles fill the kitchen where brunch making becomes a family affair. Everyone’s spirits are bright, thanks to an easy menu of time-honored recipes and ready-made accompaniments.

WRITTEN BY CYNTHIA PEARSON COLE
PHOTOGRAPHED BY TOBIN BENNETT AND PETE KRUNHARDT

Brunch with family can be one of the most enjoyable Christmas morning activities. This year, begin a new tradition or embellish a treasured one. After opening gifts, invite the family into the kitchen to make brunch (see “Putting on Brunch,” page 36). You’ll have as much fun prepping the meal as sitting down together to enjoy it.

FEATURE A FAVORITE
Plan a menu around at least one easy-to-make, time-honored recipe. Such a recipe, Spiced Belgian Waffles (see page 40) allows several people to take turns baking deliciously crisp waffles. For a crowd, borrow a waffle-maker or two to speed production. Hungry for pancakes, too? Prepare extra batter, thin it with a tablespoon or two of milk and griddle to perfection. Offer an array of spreads and toppers—Hy-Vee butter, whipped cream, maple syrup, honey, walnuts and a rainbow of juicy raspberries, blueberries, strawberries, kiwi, bananas and oranges—that allow everyone to top the waffles or pancakes just as they like. Some guests may even get creative and top each waffle quarter differently.

OFFER VARIETY
In addition to waffles, breakfast meats—ham, sausage and bacon—are good choices for a group and can be heated up together on a large griddle. Plan for two pieces of meat per person, or three strips of bacon for bacon lovers in the group. Round out the menu with a fruit platter from Hy-Vee that showcases winter’s best-loved fruits (see page 40). You’ll save precious time not needing to peel and cut up fruit. For drinks, offer one that’s cold, refreshing and fruity in addition to coffee or hot cocoa, along with flavorings. Your family will love having so many choices.

SET UP SERVING STATIONS
For serving a group, a buffet table or two is practical, easy and inviting. The casualness of selecting foods from a buffet then taking plates to a common table encourages comfortable conversation. To set up stations, clear a kitchen counter or use a sideboard or spare table covered with a pretty cloth to place food and serving utensils. Group hot foods, starting with meats and eggs, followed by waffles so guests can fill plates accordingly. Next to the waffles, set out waffle toppings and a fruit platter. If space is limited, use a cake stand or footed compote bowl to elevate small dishes filled with toppings, allowing space beneath for fruit.

Set up beverages in another area or room. When possible, fill drink cups ahead of time. Although a beverage station encourages family to help themselves, you could also offer to deliver drinks to the dining table to prevent juggling of glassware and filled plates.

STACK THE PLATES OR SET THE TABLE
Whether plates, napkins and tableware sit on the buffet or on the dining table depends on space and ease of serving. Carrying a plate from the table to the buffet while tableware remains on the table, lightens the load. However you serve your brunch, seat the family together to celebrate delicious food and good company.
Brunch with family can be one of the most enjoyable Christmas morning activities. This year, begin a new tradition or embellish a treasured one. After opening gifts, invite the family into the kitchen to make brunch (see “Putting on Brunch,” page 36). You’ll have as much fun prepping the meal as sitting down together to enjoy it.

FEATURE A FAVORITE

Plan a menu around at least one easy-to-make, time-honored recipe. Such a recipe, Spiced Belgian Waffles (see page 40) allows several people to take turns baking deliciously crisp waffles. For a crowd, borrow a waffle-maker or two to speed production. Hungry for pancakes, too? Prepare extra batter, thin it with a tablespoon or two of milk and griddle to perfection. Offer an array of spreads and toppers—Hy-Vee butter, whipped cream, maple syrup, honey, walnuts and a rainbow of juicy raspberries, blueberries, strawberries, kiwi, bananas and oranges—that allow everyone to top the waffles or pancakes just as they like. Some guests may even get creative and top each waffle quarter differently.

OFFER VARIETY

In addition to waffles, breakfast meats—ham, sausage and bacon—are good choices for a group and can be heated up together on a large griddle. Plan for two pieces of meat per person, or three strips of bacon for bacon lovers in the group. Round out the menu with a fruit platter from Hy-Vee that showcases winter’s best-loved fruits (see page 40). You’ll save precious time not needing to peel and cut up fruit. For drinks, offer one that’s cold, refreshing and fruity in addition to coffee or hot cocoa, along with flavorings. Your family will love having so many choices.

SET UP SERVING STATIONS

For serving a group, a buffet table or two is practical, easy and inviting. The casualness of selecting foods from a buffet then taking plates to a common table encourages comfortable conversation. To set up stations, clear a kitchen counter or use a sideboard or spare table covered with a pretty cloth to place food and serving utensils. Group hot foods, starting with meats and eggs, followed by waffles so guests can fill plates accordingly. Next to the waffles, set out waffle toppings and a fruit platter. If space is limited, use a cake stand or footed compote bowl to elevate small dishes filled with toppings, allowing space beneath for fruit.

Set up beverages in another area or room. When possible, fill drink cups ahead of time. Although a beverage station encourages family to help themselves, you could also offer to deliver drinks to the dining table to prevent juggling of glassware and filled plates.

STACK THE PLATES OR SET THE TABLE

Whether plates, napkins and tableware sit on the buffet or on the dining table depends on space and ease of serving. Carrying a plate from the table to the buffet while tableware remains on the table, lightens the load. Putting on Brunch Fixing brunch just got easier! Follow this step-by-step guide to make this holiday a merry time for all.

A Guide to Making Assignments

- Small children can help set the table, set out toppings and make toast.
- An experienced supervisor, Grandma, can oversee the operation, comfortably seated at a counter, if she chooses.
- Adults or older teens can mix up batter, prepare Fizzy Orange Nog, make coffee and tend to oven duties.
- Parent-child and teen-child pairs can take charge of grilling meat, scrambling eggs and making waffles.
- Adult-child pairs can work together to clean up. Adolescents and teens tend to talk more freely as a result of a sense of shared responsibility. Conversations between the generations may prove to be the most precious holiday happenings.

The Day Before

- Make Fizzy Orange Nog (see opposite); cover and chill.
- Purchase a fruit tray from your local Hy-Vee.
- Set up the dining table.

Before Brunch

- Make coffee and set out stir-ins. Invite coffee drinkers to pour a cup.
- Preheat an oven to keep baked waffles and toast warm and to heat the ham.
- Fry bacon and sausage and slice the ham.
- Set up one (or more) waffle makers; make the waffles.
- Add ginger ale to orange nog mixture.
- Make the toast.

Time to Eat

- Clear the counters.
- Set out platters of meats, eggs, waffles, fruit, toast and toppings of butter, syrup, walnuts, berries, bananas and whipped cream.
- Set up a table for beverages: Fizzy Orange Nog, coffee and cocoa. Include creamers, along with glasses, mugs and stirrers.

Cleanup Time

- Wipe the table and counters.

Special Drinks

Fill the beverage table with as many choices as your brunch menu contains. Take drink selections to new heights by serving easy-to-make Fizzy Orange Nog (below) and flavored coffees. Here’s how to make and serve the drinks.

Fizzy Orange Nog

The day before brunch: In a 2-quart pitcher, combine 4 cups Hy-Vee orange juice concentrate, thawed, frozen and orange juice concentrate, thawed. Cover and refrigerate.

Flavored Coffee & Cocoa

Offer an array of flavored coffee creamers, including French vanilla, hazelnut and amaretto, for guests to add their choice. Just a spoonful of creamer in a regular cup of coffee perks up flavor for an inviting change. Encourage children and noncoffee drinkers to stir some creamer into hot cocoa.

Ham, breakfast sausage and bacon are excellent meats to add to your brunch menu when you host a large group. An electric griddle comes in handy for cooking, providing a generous nonstick surface for all the breakfast meats and completing cooking in minutes. If you plan to prepare several meats at once, first place the sausage and bacon on a cold griddle and turn to medium setting. As the meat begins to cook, use a paper towel to carefully remove excess drippings that accumulate on the griddle. Add fully cooked ham slices when the sausage and bacon are almost done, turning the slices several times to heat evenly on both sides.

With kids and college students home during the holidays and added family meals, griddles offer convenience and practicality, especially for making breakfast. For making quick nutritious breakfast sandwiches, cook the meat and eggs and toast English muffin halves on a griddle. Assemble the sandwiches, adding slices of cheese, and breakfast is served.

In addition to the convenience and versatility, griddles offer easy cleanup with just one surface to clean.

Holiday 2009
You promise yourself that this Christmas season is going to be different. No more last-minute shopping, no more panic about which gifts to get the kids and no more of the craziness that seems to take over this time of year. Rejoice! There is a better way. Consider some of these ideas to renew your spirit.

Nurturing yourself

- On an especially stressful afternoon, take a time-out. Wrap yourself in your softest, most comfortable blanket, put on your favorite music and take a long—or short—winter’s rest.
- Take in the inviting aromas of the season. Put a medley of spices in your slow cooker. Or bake a quick version of old-fashioned gingerbread cookies from a ready-to-mix kit.
- Plan a relaxing spa evening to unwind from the demands of the season. Turn the lights down low. Light scented candles, run a warm bath and add your favorite bath salts. Then soak away your stress.
- While the family is out shopping, slip into your comfiest pjs and curl up with a cup of flavored tea or coffee while you peruse your favorite magazines.
- Reconnect with a girlfriend. Share some of your ideas for a more relaxed holiday and ask for hers, too. Going for a more leisurely pace will make the holidays more meaningful for both of you.
- Indulge your senses with a bit of the best quality chocolate—a heavenly and healthy treat. Rich chocolates, on their own or combined with other flavors, are sublime pleasure in every bite. Just a small taste can go a long way in making everyone’s holiday—including yours—a little more special.

Godiva Chocolate Bars

- Call a retirement home or care facility to make arrangements for a short visit. Then take along the entire family and spend some quality time visiting people who will enjoy your company.
- Share your time and energy while making a difference for your community. Along with your family, volunteer to ring bells for the Red Kettle Christmas Campaign sponsored by the Salvation Army. You’ll be surprised and moved by the generosity of those passing by.
- Visit Hy-Vee to rent classic holiday movies. Quickly and easily make choices, check them out and be on your way home. Then dedicate the evening to wearing pajamas, munching popcorn, drinking cocoa and having plenty of family fun.
- If you’re looking for a project that will benefit a child or an entire family this holiday season, check with your church, synagogue or local agencies. These and other organizations will be delighted to share information so you or your entire family can make the holidays a little brighter for someone in need.

A JOYOUS FEAST

Make this year’s Christmas gathering stand out with two key ingredients: a beautiful table and a lovingly prepared feast that’s as easy as it is delicious. Add family and friends, and you have the recipe for a truly enjoyable holiday celebration.

One of the greatest joys of the holiday season for Mitch Streit, store director of the Hy-Vee in Council Bluffs, Iowa, is gathering with the Streit clan—almost 40 in all—for the annual Christmas feast. “Every time we get together, it feels like the good old days. The stories are the same, the food is great and the memories keep coming,” says Mitch. “When we were growing up, I remember Dad roasting the turkey in a Hy-Vee paper sack and Mom making a fruit salad that we could only have on special occasions. That’s because the grapes were so darned expensive.”

While the eight siblings share stories with spouses and children about long-ago meals, this year’s holiday feast is a much more easygoing affair. The fragrant roasted turkey, catered by Hy-Vee, heats in the oven in a fraction of the time of a traditional turkey yet smells every bit as good. The kitchen duties involve nothing more than setting the tables and putting finishing touches on foods that barely need anything but reheating. “We always end up with far too much food, but this is our tradition of keeping the family together, even when we’re miles apart,” Mitch says.

Like the Streit family, you can make your seasonal feast brighter and a little easier, too. Use these ideas so you can host the gathering without feeling overly stressed.

• Decorate in a dramatic yet simple way. Dress up the dining table with a rich palette of red and white. Display individual arrangements of carnations from the Hy-Vee Floral Department in lieu of a large centerpiece. The versatile flowers provide a colorful punch and they’re relatively inexpensive. To carry out the seasonal theme, create letters for the word Joy, using your computer and card stock.

• Make up a doable menu. As part of the meal, consider an appetizer tray of freshly cut vegetables to help curb appetites before the big meal. Compile any recipes you are planning to make and double or triple amounts, depending on the number of guests. Then create an extensive shopping list. The more items you pick up on your first visit, the fewer additional trips you’ll need. If you prefer, take the relaxed route and order one of the Hy-Vee Kitchen Holiday Dinner Packs (see pages 48–49). Be sure to place your order ahead of the holiday rush.

• Put together a cooking plan. Determine which items can be prepared ahead. Desserts are good candidates, as is anything served chilled, such as cranberry sauce or salad. You can also bake bread ahead and warm it in the oven just before serving. Be sure to plan several days for thawing the turkey. If you need to prep the night before your big meal, consider takeout so you can focus all your cooking energy on holiday dishes.

• Tidy up the kitchen. Before bringing home your holiday groceries, clean out the pantry, freezer and refrigerator so you’ll have plenty of room for all the fresh holiday treats. Remember to check your spices for any favorites you’ll need, such as sage, thyme, cinnamon and nutmeg. You may find that you’ll need to replenish old spices you used last year.

• Invite others to help. Big holiday dinners are all about sharing, and family members and friends are often more than happy to help set the table or put final touches on the food. Accept their offers with a smile. Once everyone sits down, play Christmas music softly in the background while you and your guests enjoy the feast and the joy of another holiday together.

HAM AS THE CENTERPIECE
When ever your choice, bone-in or boneless types of ham, both are appealing—either for elegance or ease of serving. And both have great taste. Consider these tips when selecting, preparing and serving ham at your holiday gatherings.

- Allow two to three servings per pound for bone-in hams, and four to five servings per pound for boneless hams. Cover and refrigerate leftovers up to 3 days or tightly wrap and freeze them up to 2 months.

- Fully cooked hams require little preparation—simply heat to an internal temperature of 140°F and serve.

- Beautiful spiral-sliced hams are convenient to serve. These fully cooked hams, thinly sliced so meat falls away from the bone, typically have a beautiful baked-on glaze. The only work for you is to heat, place on a platter and serve.

- Rib extraordinaire: For 6 to 8-pound hams, combine ½ cup Dijon-style mustard, 2 tablespoons rosemary leaves, 1 tablespoon minced garlic, 1 teaspoon Hy-Vee salt and 1¼ teaspoons freshly cracked black pepper.

PRIME RIB PERFECTION
- Buy the best. Amana bone-in ribeye roast, a premium cut at the Hy-Vee Meat Department, and rated USDA Choice for high marbling that contributes to tenderness and flavor, is an impressive entrée. Ask a meat counter expert to carve the roast from the rib to tie the bones as a natural roasting rack. To serve, cut the string, remove the ribs and carve.

- Determine size. One rib typically serves two; a three-rib roast serves six and so on.

- Rub on rosemary flavor. For a 6- to 8-pound roast, combine ¼ cup Dijon-style mustard, 2 tablespoons rosemary leaves, 1 tablespoon minced garlic, 1 teaspoon Hy-Vee salt and 1¼ teaspoons freshly cracked Hy-Vee black pepper.

- Sear, then roast. Preheat the oven to 425°F while applying the rosemary rub. To form a crust that seals in juices, place the roast, bone-side down, for 15 minutes in the hot oven. Reduce the oven to 325°F. For 6 to 8-pound, roast 2½ to 2¾ hours for medium-rare or 3½ to 3¾ hours for medium. Use a meat thermometer to test for doneness—135°F for medium-rare or 150°F for medium.

- Allow stand time. Remove the meat from the oven, cover with foil and let stand for 15 to 20 minutes. Meat temperature will rise 5°F to 10°F as the meat absorbs juices and firms up for easy carving.

- Jazz it up. Horseradish-Cream Sauce is a fabulous accompaniment. Combine 1 cup Hy-Vee sour cream, 1¼ cup Hy-Vee horseradish, 2 tablespoons Hy-Vee half-and-half, 1 tablespoon Hy-Vee Dijon mustard and 1 teaspoon Hy-Vee salt. Serve with roast.

Feast on succulent lobster tails dipped in chipotle-lime butter. Here are hints for making it the absolute best.

1. Start with frozen lobster from your Hy-Vee Seafood department. Thaw overnight in the refrigerator.

2. Butterfly the tails. Use sharp kitchen shears to cut through the tops of the shells and the meat. Don’t cut all the way through. Open the shell and carefully pull out the meat, leaving it attached at the tail end. Close shell and rest the meat on the shell. With a sharp knife, make a \(\frac{1}{2}\)-inch-deep cut along the length of the lobster meat.

3. Brush with butter then broil. While preheating the broiler, place lobster tails, meat-side up, on the unheated rack of a broiler pan. Combine 4 tablespoons Hy-Vee unsalted butter, melted; \(\frac{1}{2}\) teaspoon lime zest, 2 teaspoons freshly squeezed lime juice, \(\frac{1}{2}\) teaspoon chipotle chili powder and \(\frac{1}{4}\) teaspoon Hy-Vee salt. (This makes enough butter for four 8-ounce lobster tails.) Reserve half the butter mixture. Brush remaining on lobster meat. Broil lobsters 10 inches from heat for 10 to 12 minutes or until meat is opaque. Serve with reserved butter mixture.

Aah, Christmas! It’s time again to remember, cherish and celebrate the most important parts of our lives—family, friends, faith and traditions. One highly regarded tradition that marks the season is gift-giving, an event that’s equally fun for giver and receiver. For thoughtful gifts that express your love and appreciation to those most dear, trust Hy-Vee to be Santa’s helper this year. Be amazed by the variety of gifts you can find in one location: toys, games, baking and kitchen accessories and containers, party items, decorative tabletopware, whimsical decorating accessories, photo frames, greeting cards, sports paraphernalia, small appliances, gift cards, batteries and so much more. Whatever’s on your gift list, check Hy-Vee first for the convenience of one-stop shopping. Then finish up by choosing from an array of wrapping papers and bags, bows, tags and ties to beautifully wrap each gift.

To get organized for this season’s shopping, let the following tips be your guide. You’ll discover that counting on the helpers at Hy-Vee is one more reason to celebrate this season.

CHECKING IT TWICE
Start your gift-shopping from home by taking a cue from Santa. Create lists and stick to them. List everyone you plan to buy for—family, friends, neighbors, coworkers, business associates, school teachers and classroom assistants, church pastors and staff, and service providers. As you think of each person on your list, consider the gift that best suits him or her. Note everyone on your list who’s far away, including those in military service. Heed that portion of the list first, shop early, then get the packages wrapped and mailed in plenty of time to be received by Christmas Eve.

Ask each person in your family to create their lists as well, one of what they plan to give and one of what they really dream about Santa bringing this year. As a family, make a list of charities and organizations to which you’d like to donate gifts of money and time.

Making lists serves multiple purposes. They help organize for shopping and budgeting, inform you what items have become high priority to fulfill dreams and put gift-giving and receiving into perspective.

BE A BUDGET-WISE SANTA
Set a budget for gift-buying and plan to stick with it. As you think of gifts for everyone on your list, estimate a dollar amount to spend. Plan for spending some money on gift-wrapping, greeting cards and postage as well.

For gift-shopping inspiration, see the suggestions on these pages, throughout the stories and photos in this issue, in the aisles at your local Hy-Vee and on www.hy-vee.com. Gifts for the home always make sense and will be put to use again and again. Small appliances as well as decorative items are thoughtful when matched to each person’s taste and style. Luxurious gifts that encourage caring for self demonstrate how much you care for the recipient. Gifts of fun that are exciting or lift the spirits include games, movies, music, toys, accessories for pets and gift cards that allow personalized selections.

PRESENT PERFECT
With lists checked twice and shopping done, wrap it all up in anticipation of opening day. For clever package tie-ons, visit the Hy-Vee Floral Department for sprigs of greenery and pinecones, or tie on candy canes with pretty ribbons. Wrap gifts for placing under the tree, mailing or delivering in person, making each present as individual as the recipient. This year, you’re one of Santa’s best helpers.

It's the last party of the old year and the first party of the new. And here's a secret: Giving a great New Year's Eve party can be a lot more fun than going out in the cold. If you've been a guest on too many New Year's Eves, follow these tips to get the confidence you need to place yourself firmly in the host camp. And if you're already planning, read on—you'll glean tips to help you make this New Year's Eve party your all-time best.

• Design a prep plan. A little advance planning will ensure you'll have time to relax and enjoy your guests at the party. Talk to the experts at your Hy-Vee a few weeks before the party. They'll help you plan the event, from ordering the right combination of deli and dessert trays to selecting the perfect wines to complement your choices. Make a master list and purchase nonperishables such as crackers and wine well in advance.

• Get a jump start on your pre-party cooking. Buy and prepare as many fresh ingredients as you can the day before. Shred cheese that doesn't come preshredded. Mince fresh cloves of garlic. Chop onions and bell peppers. Steam vegetables. Chop and toast nuts. Remember to store the ingredients separately in airtight containers, refrigerating those that need to be chilled.

• Bring in the new! One way to thrill guests is to serve at least one all-new, "Wow—what's that! Can I have the recipe?" kind of dish. With Gouda and Gruyère—rather than traditional Swiss cheese—this year's Cheese Fondue (page 76) takes off. And when you offer Mint Chocotinis (page 79) with dessert, you can be sure this New Year's Eve party will be remembered.

• Add some surefire favorites. Guests also appreciate spotting a few favorites in the mix, such as Holiday Spiced Nuts (page 74) that they can casually munch as conversations get going.

• Present the best. Nothing helps you relax and ease into party mode more than knowing that you're set to offer premium-quality foods on your table. Ordering DI LUSSO® meats and cheeses from the Hy-Vee Deli, as well as delectable desserts from the Hy-Vee Bakery, is a hassle-free way to do this. Check out some of the popular combinations available (pages 72–73 and 75) and order at the Hy-Vee Bakery or Deli or visit www.hy-vee.com.

• Buy the right amount of food and drink. You can keep your party humming happily along by replenishing food and beverages as needed, so you'll want to have plenty on hand. As a general rule, plan to make 50 percent more food than you think people will eat. For example, if you are planning on 12 guests, make enough food for 18. When it comes to drinks, figure on three to four drinks per person for a party lasting four hours. One bottle of wine equals six servings. An additional reminder for party hostesses: You can never have too much ice. Buy three times more than you think you'll need and store it in coolers close at hand.

ALL YOU NEED
- 12 ounces Gruyère cheese, shredded
- 8 ounces Gouda cheese, rind removed, shredded
- 2 tablespoons Hy-Vee cornstarch
- 1 1/2 cups dry white wine, such as Chablis or Sauvignon Blanc
- 1 tablespoon Hy-Vee lemon juice

Keep fondue bubbling gently over fondue burner. Sprinkle with chives for garnish. If desired, serve with cubed French bread, blanched broccoli florets, blanched asparagus spears, red bell pepper wedges, sliced apples and sliced pears.

Wines to Please All Palates

When it comes to serving wine for New Year’s Eve, there’s no need to fuss over what bottle goes perfectly with which food. At mingle-and-nibble gatherings, most people prefer their “usual” no matter what they’re eating, so your wine selection will be a hit as long as you have an array of non-popular varietals on hand. Cover all bases with Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and a Blend of reds for the red-wine drinkers and some Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc for white-wine fans.

How do you choose a label that’s right for your party? Count on the experts at Hy-Vee. Companywide, nearly 290 employees have completed a comprehensive study to obtain a certified wine specialist designation. This means you’ll find a great selection of wines to choose from, along with good advice on how to pick the best bottles.

Moderately priced labels you can always count on to please a crowd include the richly fruity Rosenblum Vintners’ Carine Syrah and Zinfandel, Markham Sauvignon Blanc and Frei Brothers—available in six well-known varietals. If you’re ready to “ring in the new,” give Acre Wines a try. It’s a new line of sophisticated yet affordable wines from California’s Central Coast, Heaven and Hell, Markham or Cabernet Sauvignon.

For a head-turning splurge, toast your guests with Charles Krug Cabernet Sauvignon, a complex and intense 1999 bottle from Napa Valley, a region celebrated for its powerful Cabernets. And when it comes to raising a glass at midnight, you’ll turn heads when you bring out Moët White Star Champagne, a true Champagne from the Champagne region of France.

Your guests will enjoy the wines you’ve chosen if you serve them at proper temperatures. Reds should be poured at a temperature of around 60 to 65 degrees, with lighter wines served at the cooler end of the spectrum, and heavier wines served at the warmer end. Put them in the refrigerator about an hour before serving to chill them slightly. Most whites and sparkling wines should be served at around 45 degrees. Begin chilling these bottles in the refrigerator the evening before your party. Come party time, they may be a little cooler than the optimum serving temperatures, but they will soon be just right once poured into chilled, aromatic wineglasses.
